Main, Meri Patni Aur Woh (English: Me and My Girl) is a Bollywood movie released in 2003. It was directed by Rakeysh Mehra and produced by Gulshan Kumar. Main, Meri Patni Aur Woh featured Shreyas Talpade, Divya Dutta and Ayesha Takia as lead actors. The film stars Siddharth Basu as the central character 'Khan', Rakeysh Mehra as the antagonist 'Guruji', Aarti Chhabria as his girlfriend-cum-wife 'Neeta' and Divya Dutta as the female protagonist 'Ritu'. Plot: Raju is a depressed, alcoholic. He is the husband of Neeta. She is a miserably unlucky woman who believe in astrology. As Raju's business is not doing well, he gets depressed further which causes his health to deteriorate. His father advises him to seek help from Guruji, an astrologer who has an uncanny knack for predicting people's future based on the position of the planets at that present time. The story follows Raju as he goes from being a drunkard to being a sober person who starts believing in astrology and Gandhi as well as his wife Neeta. The story deals with Raju's efforts to win over his wife and son. The story deals with the beliefs of astrology and destiny. It also shows how astrology can help people in their time of need. The film was a flop at Box office and was panned by critics as well. The film had an original music score by Aadesh Shrivastava and the lyrics were written by Praveen Bhardwaj and Sameer. The song "Ik Junoon" (Voiced By Mohit Chauhan) is picturised on Ayesha Takia, but this song was not featured in the movie, since it was released after its release. The movie was made with a budget of 5 crores, but suffered because of bad initial marketing. Rakeysh Mehra, the director of this movie had previously made few commercial potboilers like Main Aur Woh (2003), Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge (1995) and Hum Aapke Hain Kaun (1994). However, he came back with his delayed production Main Teri Kahani (2004), which proved to be a commercial smash hit.
